THE SUMMER SCHOOL

Every teacher in the county should attend the summer school. Trustees and patrons should not only allow, but urge, and, if necessary, pay and compel their teachers to attend and put in four weeks of honest study and attention, so that the county may have better schools than ever before. Every progressive, wide-awake, earnest teacher who wants to be the best possible teacher will make a sacrifice if necessary to be at the school. The State of South Carolina is doing for its teachers this summer what no other State in the Union is doing or has ever done. Four weeks tuition by the most competent available instructors in this and neighboring States is to be given in each of the forty counties of the State-given free, for these instructors do not cost the counties a cent, neither are they paid from the regular school fund. That our teachers need instruction, no one who is familiar with the papers given in at county examinations for teachers can deny. This is the greatest effort that has been made to give this instruction where it will do most good. The schools will soon be in session, the public money will soon be spent, and if it is spent for teachers who lack knowledge of subjects and mothods and cannot do good teaching it will not accomplish the results hoped for. Citizens and patrons will find it much to their advantage to help and encourage the movement all they can, as they will reap the benefits directly, through the better training of their chil-

Persons troubled with diarrhea will be interested in the experience of W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhos, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoa Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." An Appeal for Aid.

To the Readers of the KEOWEE COURIER: Dear Brethren and Sisters-I want twenty-five cents from every one of you to build a church house at Cheohee, in Ocones county, S. C. We have a church of 40 or 50 members. We have no suitable place to meet until we build a house. We have a good location given us in the center of the settlement and membership. It will take $400 or $500 to build. We are poor and 25 cents from a thousand would help us. How many churches will send a dollar or two dollars? This is a Baptist church.

Dear friends, if you wish to help us, we would be glad indeed. Give and it shall be given. In helping us here you establish mission principles. As they grow and develop they help some one else. So it goes.

I love my South Carolina friends, for they call me a Tarheel. They are good, kind brothers and sisters and by the grace of God I will stick with them here until they get a good church built. You can send your money to Mr. Jesse Lay, Tamassee, S. C., or to me at Mount Vale, Transylvania county, N. C.

Pray for us and let your prayers reach your pocketbooks. May God bless all who reads this appeal for aid. Yours truly,

L. M. LYDAY.

Professor R. H. Griffith, who filled the chair of English in Furman University last session, left Greenville this week for Newry, S. C., where he will be the guest of Capt William A. Courtenay for several weeks, looking up some matters touching the history of South Carolina. Capt. Courtenay, president of the Courtenay Mills and formerly mayor of Charleston, is one of the best authorities we know on the history of this State, and he has a fine library and a rare collection of historical documents. Professor Griffith has given special attention to history, and he expects to pursue the study of history and English. We regret that he will not be in Furman's faculty. For so young a man he is well prepared in English. He is also a fine teacher. The school, or college, that secures his services will be fortunate. He is a Christain brother of fine qualities and his departure from Greenville will be generally regretted .- Baptist Courier, June 29.

Our baby has been continually troubled with colic and cholera infantum since his birth, and all that we could do for him did not seem to give more than temporary relief, until we tried Chamberlain's Colie, Cholera and Diarrhoa Remedy. Since giving that remedy he has not been troubled. We want to give you this testimonial as an evidence of our gratitude, not that you need it to advertise your meritorious remedy.—C. M. THE GLORIOUS FOURTH FITLY CELE-BRATED-ABOUT 2,500 PRESENT.

BIG SPEECHES BY DISTINGUISHED SPEAKERS Vast Throngs Flock to Seneca-Tillman was There-Tom Watson Not Present.

The celebration of the Fourth of July, at Seneca, under the auspices of the Oconee Alliance, was, in some respects, a decided success. The attendance was large. In the early morning the people began to arrive in train, buggies, wagens, on horseback and afoot. This continued until the crowd assembled amounted to some twenty-five hundred Promptly at ten o'clock the crowd assembled at the stand, erected a hundred yards South of the Southern depot. Hon. J. L. Smith announced that the proceedings would be opened with prayer by Rev. J. M. McGuire, of Oakway.

The first speaker was Hon. J. R. Blake, who spoke on the subject assigned to him: "Lend a Helping Hand." Mr. Blake declared that, as an Allianceman he wished to address his remarks, not only to members of the Alliance, but to all professions; the word Alliance meaning alliance in thought and deed. The organization had suffered much criticism from without: nevertheless, it had been the agent for accomplishing much good to all classes of people by elevating the families of farmers generally. From its beginning it had antagonized none, but had attempted the advancement of all for the common welfare. He would, therefore, discuss the Alliance from the standpoint of patriotism and citizenship, together with all those things which make the home, the community and the State higher and better. The railroads. incorporations and capital generally had allied themselves against the industrial advance of agriculture, and not without a degree of success. It was not because they felt any antagonism to agriculture, but that they desired to speculate upon the products of the farm, and by speculation the price which farmers realized from their labor had been reduced to a minimum. Agricultural pursuits had thereby been paralyzed and rendered unprofitable. The theory of over-production had been given as the cause of depression until it had become threadbare. The speaker appealed to every farmer to make the farm self-sustaining, and to remove their corn-crib and meathouse from the West to their homes. He who gives a lien remains LEAN all his life. The fact that we had two millions of bales of cotton more than was necessary for use this year is no argument that the country does not need it. The trouble is that the exceedingly rich and the exceedingly poor are both on the increase; that wealth is being amassed in the hands of the few, and is being used by them for self-aggrandizement. There is no objection to wealth-there could and should be none; but the dan ger lies in the fact that wealth amassed in the hands of the few, the poor are being compelled to pay tribute to the few. Everything, from the soap that cleanses the face to the tobacco which is used as a luxury, and money, the medium of commerce, is controlled by trusts.

To correct these abuses the Alliance came, and we now call upon all, of every profession-lawyer, doctor, merchant and farmer-to lend a helping hand and to strive to obtain from the government the ssue of a sufficient volume of moncy to meet the demands of commerce. Let it be good money, but let it be plentiful.

The next speaker was Hon. J. C. Wiln, president of the National Farmers' Alliance, president of the State Alliance, and one of the Railroad Commissioners of South Carolina. His subject was,

'Vhat the Alliance has Accomplished." II said: "A year ago this nation called for men to fight her battles against Spain, the oppressor. And the call was answered by-whom? By sons of devoted mothers from all professions all over this great country. Young men full of vigor and life left their homes to fight and conquor. They did fight, and fight manfully, bringing honor and glory to their country, and then returned home. We are called upon to fight another battle-not with bullets, but with ballotsbattle for the home, a battle for the oppressed. The civilization of this age lemands that this battle be fought manfully, and fought to the finish. I assure you that while the Alliance of Oconce county seems to be sleeping, this great order is not dead, and it is not sleeping. It is wide-awake, and the battle is just beginning to rage for the accomplishment of its principles, which should be dear to every heart. So long as we fail to be the victor, so long will the battle rage. The sword of truth and right is in our hands, and we propose to wield it for the uplifting of down-trodden humanity. The Alliance is organized for the ask for freedom, as we did one hundred good of the home and family, and we cannot and will not surrender. We can send our men to the halls of Congress and place our men in the White House. and we can demand, and have our demands according to our wish. But we are too impatient. Our people wish everything at once. We are not willing to fight and await results. It is proba-

Hon. A. C. Latimer was then introduced as "one of our own boys; ours because we made him." He addressed the body on the subject: "What the Alliance has accomplished in legislation,' My friend who sits to my left (Hon. W.

It has been said all over this State that the Alliance was a great political organization for designing politicians to ride into office on. All rot! I defy any one to point out any man who has gone into office through the Alliance who was not verthy of their principles. The poliicians have not ridden the Alliance to has effected it. No living man can tell the influence the Alliance has exerted in this great country. According to their demand the income tax law was passed. The election of Sonators by a direct vote passed the House and only failed in the Sonate. The anti-option law passed the House to meet the same defeat in the Senate. What is our condition to-day As Lincoln said it would be, wisely said just at the close of the last war, corporate wealth and trusts are ruling this country and will continue to do so until organized effort on the part of the many shall checkmate them.

OARWAY, July 1 .- Messis. Editors The whole question about the rebuilding of the rather bridge is one of law, one of means and of policy, and it is foreign to the issue and unfair for those who favor its being rebuilt to attempt to becloud the question by charges or insinuations of sectionalism, Populism or anything else, as they are doing.

The first, or law, question is: Have the Commissioners of Oconee county, South Carolina, the authority to tax the people of the county to build a bridge in Habersham county, in the State of Georgia? Remember, now, that low water mark on the South Carolina side of Tugaloo river is the dividing line between the two States named above, and hence the Board's authority stops at the water's

The next question is: Are the people over-burdened (as they are) with taxes, and with the profits of 4-cent cotton and other farm products in proportion, able, at this time, to bear the taxation of the profits of plants known to be medicinally lastive and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the profits of plants known to be a considered and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taxto and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthes of plants known to be a considered and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taxto and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening to the taxto and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effect and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taxto and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system. It is the perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system and acceptable to the system. It is the perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system and acceptable to the system. It is the perfect strengthening laxative and acceptable to the system and acceptable to the system. It is the perfect strengthening able, at this time, to bear the taxation necessary to pay for its rebuilding, espenecessary to pay for its rebuilding, especially so when we remember that there are three public bridges and several good fords accessible to these people; and that our county is already in delta the property of the second several stance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening and that our county is already in debt from three to five thousand dollars, placed on us by previous county admin istrations, and other bridges in our own borders pressing for attention. The third or policy question is: Is it fair to the lower and middle sections of the county for us to maintain in part three public bridges (Jarrett's, the fourth one, being also a free bridge) on the people are thinly populated, the country mountainous and where, by reason of its mountainous nature, but little taxes are collected-and maintain no bridge? On the lower Tuguloo, where the country is thickly populated, the land comparatively level, well im proved and highly assessed for taxation, and on whom the burden for rebuilding this bridge (if built) will fall, and espe county bridges now really in a dangerous condition, and our own people, who have sons at Clemson (their own college) paying TOLL to go to see them over

To my friend, B. C. Rothell, I will say that all the goods I buy outside of our county I bring into it over TOLL bridges and I only desire that we both in the future be placed, in this respect, on an equality.

To Mr. Zimmerman's fling about "extra road work" we will only say that the section he writes for, in our opinion, has no just cause of complaint when we remember the amount of money the county now has on the upper Tugaloo by reason of this same Prather's bridge, having built and rebuilt it three tin only to be toppled into the river again. We observe, also, the piles of blasted rock, the turns, changes and grades and so forth in this section of the county. And, when I see all these things, I am county has built me three free county has built me three free bridges sto my Scott place, and that bridge site outside its own territory, too, all in a period of sixteen years, at a cost of thousands of dollars, as to again have the cheek to ask them to build it for me the fourta time.

Now, Messrs. Editors, I think th above are fair conclusions and are borne ing neighbors," and, having done their bidding on three previous occasions, that we will now be too "indolent" and "timid" to resist their "demands" for twisted" that they will not twisted" that they will not remember that they are acting for the "whole county," that they will just walk up like "pre y boys" and pile up a few more thousand on the people in taxation to be toppled into the Tugaloo the next freshet

In conclusion, allow me to say that have only the best of feelings for those interested. A number of them are my kinsmen—all of them are my friends so far as I know. It would be a pleasure for me to build them this bridge could I conscientiously believe that they were not now better provided for in the way of free crossings than the remainder of the county, and if I could do so with out invading our already overburdened tax-payers with a tax too heavy to be borne to justify the outlay; and further, provided I could do so legally. Respectfully,
J. J. HALEY.

Rev. L. M. Lyday, of North Carolina, is the supply for Cheohee this year. Mr. Lyday is a nice speaker and the people like him.

Messrs. Henry and A. Singleton, of Mount Tabor, S. C., paid their many friends in Cheohee a pleasant visit the Executrix of Estate of I. K. James fourth Saturday and Sunday in June. They also conducted a nice singing at Cheokee. They had a hearty welcome. Mr. A. Singleton has charge of the Cheohee school this year. We think the trustees did well in calling on Mr. Singleton to teach school. We wish them all much success in their labor.

All the farmers will soon be done laying by their crops. A protracted meeting will begin at Cheohee on the fourth Saturday in July.
